Notes

I particularly wish to thank Peter Beal for his help in gaining access to materials that made this article possible.

<sup>1</sup> I thank John T. Shawcross for bringing these lines to my attention; they led to the discovery of those in MS. Aubrey 6 as well. Shawcross also added the entries for An hymne to the Saints, and to Marquesse Hamylton and 'Natures lay Ideot, I taught thee to love' in the United States Air Force Academy 1633 Poems to an earlier draft of this article.
